Acknowledgments

I would like to thank all of the talented cake artists and instructors I have had the pleasure of meeting and working with throughout my years with Cupcake Envy. The cake community is a very special group of passionate people with unique personalities, crazy talent, and a true love for creating. I always feel honored to be in their presence, as each cake artist is so accomplished in their craft and yet welcomed me with kindness and excitement into their world.

“Amy, you are very lucky that you found someone who is willing to put with you!” And boy, were they right. My husband Bill is my alter ego. Throughout the crazy ups and downs, he is by my side with kind words, love, and an indispensable sense of humor.

Thank you to my two boys: Ben and Sam, it was because of them that Cupcake Envy came to be. I have immense respect for them as individuals and the young men they are becoming. I love you, boys.

I would like to thank my mom and dad for their encouragement and support throughout the years. They taught me the value of hard work and perseverance. Though we live states away, they are always in my thoughts and I hope I have made them proud.

Thank you to my sister, Debbie, for being so much more than a sister. She’s my best friend, my biggest cheerleader, and a pretty awesome cake class assistant. My sister’s strength, guts, and unconditional love are traits I admire and value. I know I could not have done this without her.

I don’t think a simple thank you would suffice for my dear friend and neighbor, Dana, who not only helped brand Cupcake Envy but has always given me sound advice, celebrated my successes, and helped me laugh off my failures. She will always be family to me.

Thank you to my agent, Stacey Glick, for her patience and commitment to my project. Thank you for believing in me.

Thank you to Tuttle Publishing for helping to bring my dreams of a book to fruition.

I’d like to thank Danielle Centoni for her expertise and guidance. This book would never have happened without her utmost commitment and knowledge. I have learned so much from you.

Writing this book has been such an amazing experience. So many wonderful friends and family helped me get to this point. I am sincerely grateful for the wonderful people in my life.
